Gillfillan's Gold, Anti-Spinward Periphery

May 3, 2027

It looks like we're close to the end of this thing. The bad guys are running, and their main supply base is in our hands. With any luck, we can all get off this miserable Periphery rock, and head back to civilization soon. Even better, when we went over the scans and wreckage of the base, there were Free World League fingerprints all over everything. We suspect some of these so-called 'pirates' may even be actual League regulars in disguise. It would sure explain how some nameless band of Periphery scum managed to put together such a large, and well-supplied force so quickly.

It's too soon to get confirmation back from LC high command, but you should all expect to mount up for one more push into the back country to send the Leaguers running for home once and for all.
