MISSIONS

Mission 3029-03b (Capellan): A Bump in the Night
Outskirts of Baktal, Sarna, Sarna Commonality, Capellan Confederation
July 17, 3029
Pilot Skill: 2-4

Okay Boys, listen up!

The current situation on Sarna is a bit of a stalemate. Our current employers, McCarron's Armored Cavalry, and their current employers, the Capellan Confederation, have figured out that they outnumber the remaining invading Federated Suns' troops nearly two to one. However, the Big Mac is being extremely careful as they've been lured into one too many traps so far during this war, and are convinced that this is another one.

This means that they're taking their time surrounding and eliminating the two Fed mercenary regiments - the Crater Cobras and the Screaming Eagles. The mercs are proving to be quite wily, though, and have been executing a bunch of hit-and-run raids to keep the Big Mac on their toes. This, in turn, has forced our allies to spread out to try to cover as much territory as possible.

Our job is to defend this arms depot here at grid point alpha, on the banks of the Tapi river. Don't worry, it's a pretty plum assignment. The river here flows so fast that even Battlemechs would be crazy to cross it, and the Feds themselves took out the only bridge within twenty miles in either direction some time ago in an attempt to keep us from getting at them. There's no way they'd attack here.

Especially not at night.

Map: Use the Pozoristu Mountains map from the Tukayyid map pack (if available). Otherwise, any heavily mountain/hilly map will do with some modifications.

Recommended Maps:

1: Pozoristu Mountains

Setup: The Player mechs start on the map within 2 tiles of any building. After the Player mechs are placed the OPFOR can start on the map on any land tile south of the river or enter the map on the south side on their first turn.

Special Rules

It's a night raid: This Mission takes place at night giving a +2 penalty to shooting any unlit units. (TO, Pg. 58)

It's dangerous to go at night. Take this: The attacking Fed mercenaries have brought a handheld searchlight. (TO, pg 57). Only units with at least one hand actuator may hold a handheld searchlight. It will light all targets in a hex within 10 hexes, and all hexes in intervening hexes, as well as the holder. The hex must be in the firing arc for the hand holding the searchlight. The holding unit may switch the light on or off during the movement phase. If the 'mech with the searchlight gets hit in the arm holding the searchlight, roll 2d6. On a 7+ the searchlight is destroyed.

Who left the lights on? All buildings hexes illuminate 3 tiles of light in every direction.

Fieldworks: There are field works set up on the map. If a mech is in the fieldwork hex they have partial cover against attacks from their level or lower.

That's a lot of rubble: All rough terrain is considered unstable rubble. This terrain cost 1 extra movement to enter and immediately causes a +5 piloting skill roll with additional rules. If the mech falls double the fall damage taken and the mech is displaced towards the adjacent hex with the lowest elevation. If there is more than one adjacent hex, roll a die to determine the hex. If the unit falls into a water hex, it takes fall damage again from the water's surface to the bottom of the water hex.

Cliff Diving: There are steep cliff hexes on the map that require +4 movement points to enter and immediately causes a +5 piloting skill roll with additional rules. If the mech falls double the fall damage taken and the mech is displaced towards the adjacent hex with the lowest elevation. If there is more than one adjacent hex, roll a die to determine the hex. If the unit falls into a water hex, it takes fall damage again from the water's surface to the bottom of the water hex.

White Water: The River crossing is considered Rapids (TO, pg 50). It costs an additional MP to enter any water hex, with an additional +4 penalty to PSRs made while in water hexes. Failed rolls cause a fall, as well as the unit to displace 5 hexes "Downriver" (from the left to the right). If the unit would hit a rubble or road hex, it will take additional damage as if it fell a single level, roll on the "Facing after a fall" table to determine where the damage is applied. The unit will then stop tumbling.

Heh heh. BOOM. (secret object reward): If the PCs agree, for every player that has the secret objective from mission 3029-02 (either version) may choose to jury rig one of the fieldwork hexes with Long Tom ammunition preserved from that mission. If any mech (from either side) enters that hex, the ammo will detonate. The 'mech that entered the hex will take damage as if it had triggered a 25 point mine (most likely taking damage to the legs) in 5 point clusters. Units in adjacent hexes will take 15 points on the facing chart (again in five point clusters) and units two hexes away will take 5 points.

They're not paying me enough for this... Stuff: (Secret - Don't tell the PCs): The Feds are under forced withdrawl rules.

Mission Objectives: Defend the supply base on the other side of the destroyed bridge. To do that, you must have more 'mechs within three hexes of buildings in the base as the Feds.

Award (C-Bills)	Mech Survived	Mech Severely Damaged	Mech Destroyed
Keep control of the supply base (Mission Successful)	350,000	250,000	100,000
Destroy or cripple half of the enemy mechs (Bonus Objective)	+100,000	+100,000	+100,000
Feds gain control (Mission Unsuccessful)	150,000	100,000	50,000
(Secret Objective): Destroy or cripple all of the enemy mechs (Attrition)	+100,000	+100,000	+100,000

Award (XP)	Pilot Survived	Pilot Killed
Keep control of the supply base (Mission Successful)	15	5
Feds gain control (Mission Unsuccessful)	8	3
Opposing 'Mech/Combat Vehicle destroyed by party (each)	+1	+1

Additional Rewards

MISSIONS

Mission: 3029-03b (Capellan) Debrief

A Bump in the Night

Outskirts of Baktal, Sarna, Sarna Commonality, Capellan Confederation

July 17, 3029

For the first time in over a month, you find yourself at a bar that is not simply the mess hall on the Grover's Folly. This one is in the main industrial sector of the city of Baktal, called "zagadki" or something like that. It's loud and everything smells of stale vodka, but the drinks are cheap, and you've been invited by your new friends in the McCarron's Armored Cavalry, so who are you to say no?

You're about three shots in when Henrik walks in, shaking his head and chuckling to himself. Probably an inside joke you'd never get anyway.

"I see you guys have taken the Major's lifting of the fraternizing embargo to heart. Good for you." He orders something suspiciously non-alcoholic from the bar and makes his way over to the table you're sharing with some non-coms in the Big Mac. Henrik nods to them, then plops himself down on a chair that someone has hastily dragged over from another table.

"So as you're probably aware, the Big Mac has, after about a month of probing attacks and aerospace flyovers, figured out just what the Feds have in the area, so we no longer really need to worry about spilling the beans. Don't say anything directly, but the Major obviously is no longer concerned that you're going to give away anything that may constitute a violation of our previous contract".

With that, El Guapo raises a toast and gives a "Huzzah!". Everyone except Henrik joins in.

"Given that, the Big Mac is starting to get ready to make a push on the remaining Fed troops - which is still over two regiments of mercenaries, plus survivors from the Fifth Syrtis. They're relatively well supplied, since they captured a weapons factory belonging to Tengo Aerospace at the beginning of the campaign. This means they're pretty flush for expendables, so we aren't going to be able to starve them out.

"Having said that - it looks like it's going to be a little longer before we're called up again. I'm assured that we're going to have a part to play in the final assault, and that it should come soon. The Big Mac is wary of walking into another trap, but at the same time, the Feds are bound to send reinforcements any day now. So drink 'em while you got 'em - but not too much. I don't want to have to bail anyone out of a Capellan jail tomorrow"

At this point, one of the Big Mac pilots - Marcus? Louis? Something like that, returns with a tray of shot glasses. By the time you have all downed round four, you look up and realize that Henrik has completely disappeared.

How does he do that?

For the first time in over a month, you find yourself at a bar that is not simply the mess hall on the Grover's Folly. This one is in the main industrial sector of the city of Baktal, called "zagadki" or something like that. It's loud and everything smells of stale vodka, but the drinks are cheap, and you've been invited by your new friends in the McCarron's Armored Cavalry, so who are you to say no?

You're about three shots in when Henrik walks in, shaking his head and chuckling to himself. Probably an inside joke you'd never get anyway.

Mission: 3029-03b (Capellan) Debrief

A Bump in the Night

Outskirts of Baktal, Sarna, Sarna Commonality, Capellan Confederation

July 17, 3029

For the first time in over a month, you find yourself at a bar that is not simply the mess hall on the Grover's Folly. This one is in the main industrial sector of the city of Baktal, called "zagadki" or something like that. It's loud and everything smells of stale vodka, but the drinks are cheap, and you've been invited by your new friends in the McCarron's Armored Cavalry, so who are you to say no?

You're about three shots in when Henrik walks in, shaking his head and chuckling to himself. Probably an inside joke you'd never get anyway.

"I see you guys have taken the Major's lifting of the fraternizing embargo to heart. Good for you." He orders something suspiciously non-alcoholic from the bar and makes his way over to the table you're sharing with some non-coms in the Big Mac. Henrik nods to them, then plops himself down on a chair that someone has hastily dragged over from another table.

"So as you're probably aware, the Big Mac has, after about a month of probing attacks and aerospace flyovers, figured out just what the Feds have in the area, so we no longer really need to worry about spilling the beans. Don't say anything directly, but the Major obviously is no longer concerned that you're going to give away anything that may constitute a violation of our previous contract".

With that, El Guapo raises a toast and gives a "Huzzah!". Everyone except Henrik joins in.

"Given that, the Big Mac is starting to get ready to make a push on the remaining Fed troops - which is still over two regiments of mercenaries, plus survivors from the Fifth Syrtis. They're relatively well supplied, since they captured a weapons factory belonging to Tengo Aerospace at the beginning of the campaign. This means they're pretty flush for expendables, so we aren't going to be able to starve them out.

"Having said that - it looks like it's going to be a little longer before we're called up again. I'm assured that we're going to have a part to play in the final assault, and that it should come soon. The Big Mac is wary of walking into another trap, but at the same time, the Feds are bound to send reinforcements any day now. So drink 'em while you got 'em - but not too much. I don't want to have to bail anyone out of a Capellan jail tomorrow"

At this point, one of the Big Mac pilots - Marcus? Louis? Something like that, returns with a tray of shot glasses. By the time you have all downed round four, you look up and realize that Henrik has completely disappeared.

How does he do that?
