MISSIONS

Mission 3029-04a (Federated Suns): Crash Landing
Wilds of Canoshal, Sarna, Capellan Confederation
September 7, 3029
Pilot Skill: 2-4

Okay Boys <static> Up!

As you may or may not have noticed, things are going badly for the visiting team here on Sarna. It seems like the Capellans are slowly getting over their reticence to attack, and have been steadily pushing the remaining Fed Suns troops back. The combined commands of the Screaming Eagles and the Crater Cobras decided to pull back to a location known as "Graves Hollow", as it's both more defensible and more remote than the city of Backtal where we've been stationed so far. Despite the Cappies having complete air superiority, it was decided that we would be relatively safe if we all travelled by dropship in a series of short, suborbital flights.

As you may recall, the Grover's Folly was badly damaged when we landed on Sarna, so we've been forced to borrow transport from our mercenary friends. It's a converted civilian dropper, so it's only really big enough to carry the lot of you. Er. Was big enough. Now it's a pile of scrap metal on the plains of Canoshal. Turns out the combined command's idea of "Relatively Safe" was pretty much "Not at all safe". Fortunately, due to the heroic efforts of the crew, you were able to land "relatively" intact.

Unfortunately, you ain't outta the woods yet. It seems that while the Cappy Aerospace assets have gone off in search of better targets, they've dispatched 'mechs to your location. Normally we say to just run, but unfortunately we can't do that. It turns out that you guys weren't this particular dropship's first trip - meaning that the Black Box recorder has intel that the Capellans really want. We need you to keep them away from it. There are two ways they can get the intel they need - they could either just physically grab it, or they could scan it. Yeah, I know, Military dropship black boxes are shielded from that sort of thing, but as I said, this is a converted civilian ship.

We've sent more 'mechs to back you up, but they're going to get there some time after the Cappies get there, so I'm afraid you're going to be on your own for a bit.

I know what your first question is: Why don't we just frag the black box recorder? Heh. Funny Story. You know those things can survive Dropship crashes, right? I know your second question, too: and fifty extra laps to the first smartass who asks why they don't just make the whole dropship outta black box material.

Seriously though, stay safe. This is gonna be a rough ride.

Map: Use the Kozice Valley Map from the Tukayyid map pack (if available). Otherwise, any heavily hilly map will do.

Recommended Maps:

1: Kozice Valley

Setup: The downed dropship is an aerodyne dropship centered on hex 1604, with the cockpit in hex 1704. The Player mechs start on the map within 2 tiles of the downed dropship. Once the PCs have deployed, the OPFOR will enter from any side of the map except the top on turn 1.

Special Rules

Oooh, We're not getting the deposit back on that one: The Dropship is a total wreck. It is completely nonfunctional. Count all dropship hexes as level 1 rubble. One of the hexes should be marked as the "Cockpit".

Black Box: The dropship has a blackbox that has a record of all fight data and transmissions made by the dropship. It is too valuable for the Feds to lose to the Capellians. The Black Box's data can be captured in two ways: Either by scanning it, or physically grabbing it and running off with it.

Scan the Box: A 'mech with 'EW Equipment' (i.e. the Raven) can scan the black box by spending an entire turn within 3 hexes of it without breaking line of sight. After that, the 'mech needs to escape off of any side of the map except the top.

Grab the Box: First, a 'mech must do 20 points of melee damage to the cockpit of the dropship. Melee attacks can be made from any hex adjacent to the cockpit regardless of elevation. Second, a 'mech with at least one functional hand actuator needs to make a "punch" attack against the cockpit hex to grab the black box. Finally, the 'mech with the black box needs to escape off of any side of the map except the top.

Damn Zealots (Secret - reveal when used): Any Veteran (3/4) or Elite (2/3) Capellan Pilot has the "For the Chancellor" PSA.

A Leg Up (secret object reward): Any player that has completed the secret objective of mission 3029-03 can one extra movement phase before the mission begins.

BATTLETECH™

MISSIONS

Mission: 3029-04a (Federated Suns) Debrief
Crash Landing
Wilds of Canoshal, Sarna, Capellan Confederation
September 7, 3029

It's a long march from the dropship crash site to the new bivouac in a place called Graves Hollow, and you find yourself there a bit after dark. After several months on Sarna, however, you're starting to get used to "Roughing it" in makeshift portable shelters. They're somewhat better than tents, and they definitely could be worse. You've heard horror stories of pilots living in their 'mechs for weeks on end, and so far you've managed to avoid that fate. Still, that might explain the stink that can permeate the cockpits of some of the older 'mechs out there.

Far more troubling is the fact that, after several months on planet, the Lancers have run out of that excellent Lyran beer that you stocked up on back before you left Lyran space for the Federated Suns. You've been subsisting on confiscated Capellan beer for the past two months, and it's a really poor substitute. War is hell, as they say.

You suspect that's why you haven't seen Henrik as much lately. But he's at the Bivoac bar when you get there strung out from the long march. He hands you a glass of..something. You've heard rumors that the Crater Cobras have starting distilling moonshine using old heat sinks for their tubing. You really hope you can still see after this.

"The Combined command is worried that the Big Mac are about to make their move. So far we've been giving better than we've been getting in this campaign, but that can't last. Pretty soon they're going to put together that we're outnumbered two to one. The Screaming Eagles want to make their last stand here in Graves Hollow - the thick trees should make any assault slow and give the defenders a significant advantage, so it's a pretty solid plan. I've heard grumblings that the Cobras have some other plan - something involving an old factory, although they were being pretty cagey about the details. I'll let you know when I do."

You all look rather suspiciously at each other, him, and then, finally, your "drinks".

"Drink up", Henrik says, draining his. "It'll put hair on your chests."

MISSIONS

Mission: 3029-04a (Federated Suns) Debrief
Crash Landing
Wilds of Canoshal, Sarna, Capellan Confederation
September 7, 3029

It's a long march from the dropship crash site to the new bivouac in a place called Graves Hollow, and you find yourself there a bit after dark. After several months on Sarna, however, you're starting to get used to "Roughing it" in makeshift portable shelters. They're somewhat better than tents, and they definitely could be worse. You've heard horror stories of pilots living in their 'mechs for weeks on end, and so far you've managed to avoid that fate. Still, that might explain the stink that can permeate the cockpits of some of the older 'mechs out there.

Far more troubling is the fact that, after several months on planet, the Lancers have run out of that excellent Lyran beer that you stocked up on back before you left Lyran space for the Federated Suns. You've been subsisting on confiscated Capellan beer for the past two months, and it's a really poor substitute. War is hell, as they say.

You suspect that's why you haven't seen Henrik as much lately. But he's at the Bivoac bar when you get there strung out from the long march. He hands you a glass of..something. You've heard rumors that the Crater Cobras have starting distilling moonshine using old heat sinks for their tubing. You really hope you can still see after this.

"The Combined command is worried that the Big Mac are about to make their move. So far we've been giving better than we've been getting in this campaign, but that can't last. Pretty soon they're going to put together that we're outnumbered two to one. The Screaming Eagles want to make their last stand here in Graves Hollow - the thick trees should make any assault slow and give the defenders a significant advantage, so it's a pretty solid plan. I've heard grumblings that the Cobras have some other plan - something involving an old factory, although they were being pretty cagey about the details. I'll let you know when I do."

You all look rather suspiciously at each other, him, and then, finally, your "drinks".

"Drink up", Henrik says, draining his. "It'll put hair on your chests."
